Anime you remember fondly — anime you’ve barely heard the name of — and anime you wish you could forget, played back from original 1980s and 1990s LaserDiscs

URUSEI YATSURA
Moroboshi Ataru is the unluckiest guy in the world: he only deserves half of the things that happen to him! Sure, “save the world, get a hot alien girlfriend” sounds like a good deal... (TV episodes 1, 8, 15, 19, 20)

KIMOGURE ORANGE ROAD
Kasuga Kyosuke does not have a problem with aliens. Little sisters, however, are another matter! (TV Episode 16, “Well, do you believe it or not? Madoka saw a UFO”)

HYPERDOLL
Mew and Mica are superheroines sent from space to protect the Earth. Or at least that’s what the floating head in the pizza box says. Guy seems kind of sketchy, to be honest. (Episodes 1 & 2 of 2)

TENCHI MUYO
Masaki Tenchi thought he would liven up his summer vacation by searching for ancient family secrets. Now he has been blown up, set on fire, kidnapped into space, and had his house (with his dad in it!) shrunk into a paperweight. Be careful what you wish for. (Episodes 1–3 of 6, depending how you count)

LUPIN III
LEGEND OF THE GOLD OF BABEL
When you’re a Master Thief, the whole point is to make crime pay. Divine intervention can really put a wrench in your spokes!

PROJECT A-KO
“Graviton City will never be the same!” “Oh, come on, you say that every day.” “And every day it’s true!” — Does your favorite schoolgirl slice–of–life anime include the fearsome blue god of death, Max 5000? No? Well that’s why, more than 35 years later, Project A–Ko is still the best.

All selections presented in Japanese with English subtitles

THIRD FLOOR PANEL ROOM E

Warning!
Contents under pressure. External use only. Do not dispose in fire, no matter what Ten-chan says. May result in abduction, subduction, eruption, eructation, or other physical, psychological, or cosmonautical calamities.

ENTER AT YOUR OWN RISK!